CIVIL LIBERTIES

Libertarians believe that the equal rights of all people matter all the time. No exceptions. Other political parties prioritize the rights of some, but not others.

Libertarians value the right of all to live in whatever manner they choose, so long as they do not forcibly interfere with the equal right of others to live in whatever manner they choose.

We also believe that the government must treat all people fairly and equally before the law.

Libertarians believe that each person has the same rights as any other.

Race, gender, ethnic background, immigration status, occupation, education level, sexual orientation, religion, and other characteristics should have no bearing on our rights as free and independent people.

Libertarians seek to:

protect freedom of religion, association, speech, press, and assembly;

protect internet freedom and privacy;

fight federal overreach and government surveillance programs;

reform asset-forfeiture laws;

restore Fourth Amendment rights against unreasonable searches and seizures;

reverse the militarization of law-enforcement agencies;

restrict law-enforcement use of general surveillance technologies;

restore voting and gun rights for those convicted of non-violent drug offenses.
